Educational Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, the participant should be better able to:

- 1 Describe the purpose and value of both clinical and administrative supervision in supporting high-quality patient care and staff wellbeing.
- 2 Recognize early signs of emotional overload, rumination, and emotional labor in themselves and in others on their team.
- 3 List the core components of the CE-CERT model and explain how these components relate to managing emotional strain in everyday work.
- 4 Gain awareness of how integrating brief regulation and reflection moments into supervision can strengthen clarity, reduce stress, and support compassion satisfaction.
- 5 Identify 2-3 micro-skills individuals can use personally and that supervisors can encourage during supervision.
